Germany's most desirable employer

Klüh Multiservices is among the top five in the industry

Düsseldorf, 15.11.2018 – From now on, Klüh Service Management bears the seal “Germany’s most desirable employer”. This distinction has now been awarded to the company by the F.A.Z.-Institut für Management-, Markt- und Medieninformationen GmbH. Under the scientific supervision of Prof. Dr. Werner Sarges, director of the institute and consulting psychologist at the Institut für Management-Diagnostik, Barnitz (near Hamburg), Germany’s top employers were determined in a broad study over a period of three years.

“Germany’s most desirable employer” looked at the reputation of the companies and evaluated their performance as an employer with regard to profitability, management, products and services, and sustainability. The source of the data collection was 15 million statements in the German-speaking Internet. The 5,000 largest German companies from 132 industries were analysed for the study. The basis for the examination was the communication about these employers on Twitter, Facebook, online media, forums, blogs, communities and rating platforms. According to the study results, Klüh is one of the top five building management companies.

The top ranking has been very well received by the management of the traditional Düsseldorf-based company. Only a few weeks ago, with its catering division, Klüh took second place among all the providers nationwide in the German customer award 2018. Christian Frank, Managing Director, who is responsible for the personnel department among other things: “We are extremely proud of the award and also endeavour to be an attractive employer in the future, and the best choice for our employees. This also means that we will go on striving to meet the expectations of our employees, take their personal developmental aspirations seriously, be open to criticism and promote independence.”
