New commission for Klüh Security

Dresden Airport is followed by security at Leipzig/Halle Airport

Düsseldorf, 13 March 2018 – Leipzig / Halle Airport has commissioned the security division of the family business Klüh Service Management with comprehensive security services. Germany's second largest cargo airport is used by more than two million passengers each year and like Dresden Airport, a customer of Klüh since 2003, is a subsidiary of Mitteldeutsche Airport Holding. In an EU-wide tender, Klüh Security convinced with its many years of airport expertise and a security concept individually tailored to the airport.

With around 130 employees, the Klüh Security Team is responsible for the security checks on individuals and goods in accordance with § 8 and 9 of the Aviation Security Act (LuftSiG) as well as access controls, terminal supervision and other comprehensive security services such as the issuing of ID, patrolling and intervention duties.

"We are delighted to now also take on security tasks at Leipzig/Halle Airport, and see the award of the contract as confirmation of our trusting and good cooperation at Dresden Airport", says Security Managing Director Jürgen Hahn

Another long-term and satisfied customer of Klüh in the field of airport security is Düsseldorf Airport at the company's home base. The tasks of the roughly 800 employees include, among other things, the carrying out of security checks on individuals, goods and vehicles, boarding pass checks, the accompaniment/ supervision of external companies, pilot services, traffic routing services and all forms of entry/access control activities. In addition, the work also includes services such as the wheelchair service for passengers with reduced mobility, and reception and information services.
