

PRESS RELEASE

New training and education partner for the security industry

Klüh Security founds its own academy for the qualification of security personnel

Düsseldorf, 20.03.2023 – Klüh Security, a subsidiary of the Klüh Group, announces the market launch of the Rheinische Akademie für Sicherheit und Wirtschaft GmbH (RASW). The training offered by the new educational institution covers basic and advanced training topics of the security sector in the areas of aviation security, hazardous materials and personal protection and is aimed at all security companies that would like to qualify their security personnel accordingly.

“The RASW enables us to secure our quality leadership in security services and to raise market potentials on the training and further education market for security personnel, especially in the area of aviation security”, says Axel Hartmann, Managing Director of Klüh Security.

Besides aviation security personnel, the RASW also trains general security personnel, for example in weapon proficiency or fire protection, and also provides training measures based on the accreditation and licensing ordinance for employment promotion (AZAV). The instruction is carried out in the training centres of the new security academy at the Düsseldorf location as well as in the branch offices in Cologne and Ratingen. Online training is also provided. With officially certified and approved trainers, faithful reconstructions of selected control routes in which critical situations can be realistically simulated, as well as an X-ray image recognition programme certified by the German Federal Aviation Authority for the identification of dangerous items, the RASW guarantees the highest quality of training.

The RASW is the perfect addition to Klüh Security’s services, which provide and guarantee security for highly sensitive areas of critical infrastructure. The connection is a further step in being able to offer high-quality, integrated security solutions that are fit for the future.
