Klüh Security receives its seventh Comenius Award in a row

Düsseldorf, 28/06/2023– Klüh Security has been presented the prestigious Comenius EduMedia Award by the Gesellschaft für Pädagogik, Information und Medien e. V. (Society for Education, Information and Media - GPI) for the seventh time in a row. The security division of the multi-service provider Klüh received the award in the category “Vocational Training and Development” for its digital learning programme “Positional asphyxia”. Klüh Security Managing Director Sven Horstmann: “We are very pleased about the award and are proud that the didactic and medial quality of our work has been recognised and acknowledged by impartial experts”.

Klüh Security trains its employees itself in seminars and workshops run by the company’s own academy and security school. The new Rheinische Akademie für Sicherheit und Wirtschaft GmbH (RASW) also offers a comprehensive range of training courses for basic and advanced topics in the security industry covering aviation security, hazardous materials and personal protection, which is aimed at all security companies wishing to qualify their personnel accordingly. Here, the "DigiLearn" web- and computer-based learning management system provides an innovative and modern supplement to traditional classroom teaching.

The “Comenius EduMedia Seal” is awarded after a thorough examination by the GPI expert jury of academics and professional and educational practitioners from ten countries worldwide. The organisation has awarded the seal annually since 1995 in recognition of outstanding digital educational media for work, training, school, culture and leisure. Award-winning digital educational media must be designed and implemented according to pedagogical, didactic, aesthetic and technical criteria. This year, approximately 200 manufacturers, publishers, projects and authors from eight European countries submitted digital educational products for a manufacturer-neutral quality check.

The Comenius EduMedia Award originated with the educator Johann Amos Comenius (1592-1670). Comenius was a pioneer of a popular and child-oriented education, and he propagated the systematic use of pictures and vividness for didactic purposes.
